DICK JOHNSON'S DAUGHTERS.

Their Elopement With Two Indians Recalled in Columbus, O.

A special from Columbus says the discussion resulting from the finding of some old vaults at the corner of Broad and High, where workmen were digging for the foundation of a new building, has revived some romantic history of the ante-emancipation days.

The story is that of the elopement of two daughters of Colonel R. M. Johnson, Vice-President of the United States with Van Buren. Johnson had established, near his home in Kentucky, a school for Indians, and as Cupid's darts were quite as erratic in their flight then as now, the two girls became enamored of two young Indians who were attending the school, and planned an elopement. They escaped to Cincinnati, and from there made their way to Columbus by a rapid coach.

John Kerr, an old resident of Columbus, remembers the details distinctly. He says that when the party arrived in that city, they stopped at the old National Hotel, standing where the Neil House is now located, and that the proprietors of the hotel were in some doubt as to whether to admit one of the girls to his hospitable because she was so dark that he suspected that she had negro blood in her veins. After a short stop the eloping party continued their journey East.

They had not been gone more than two hours, however, before some of Colonel Johnson's men came riding fast from Cincinnati in pursuit of them. Securing fresh horses the pursuers pressed on and overtook the eloping party near St. Clairsville, where the Indians escaped, but the men succeeded in bringing the Johnson girls back.

On their return they stopped over the first night in Columbus, and the girls were locked up in a rear room on the second floor of the old National Hotel. During the night they managed to escape from a window to the kitchen roof, and thence to the ground. One of the girls, Parthena Johnson, was finally recaptured in a thicket, Northeast of town, and placed for temporary safe keeping in the Gay Street Jail. She was finally taken back to Kentucky. Cassie was never captured. Mr. Kerr, who tells the story, says that he saw her a year or more afterward, employed as a waiter in a hotel at Lower Sandusky, now Fremont.

Colonel Johnson was a historic character. He is supposed to have killed the Indian Chief Tecumseh, and is gratefully remembered in Kentucky as the author of the law abolishing imprisonment for debt.

The tallest man living to-day is said to be Chang-tu-Ling, the Chinese giant. His height is 7 feet 8 inches.

INSURANCE.

Important Bill Introduced by Congressman Pattison,

Proposing the National Regulation of the Whole Business.

It Includes Life, Fire, Marine, Accident and Indemnity Companies Doing Business in More Than One State—Congressmen in Their Shirt Sleeves.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Congressman John M. Pattison, of Ohio, left for home Friday to remain until next winter. Before leaving the capitol Mr. Pattison introduced a bill to promote commerce by regulating insurance among the states. Mr. Pattison says that if the bill should become a law it would give the several million policy-holders in life companies the additional security of national supervision and will tend to lessen the great fire loss of the country. The bill provides for a national insurance department under the supervision of the secretary of the treasury. It includes life, fire, marine, accident and indemnity companies doing business in more than one state. It excludes corporations of a purely religious, charitable or benevolent character, a chief officer of the bureau to be appointed by the president, with the approval of the senate.

All expenses of the entire bureau, including all salaries, clerk hire and incidental expenses, are to be borne by the companies themselves, according to assets. In this respect it is modeled after the New York state law. It also provides for a uniform system of report, each company making a report to its own state and to the national bureau and no more. It gives the national commissioner authority to supervise and investigate the records and business of any company at any time he may deem necessary or expedient.

Ohio is now the only state that makes even a yearly examination compulsory, other states every four or five years, and some not at all. The different state insurance departments and the state insurance commissioners will not be disturbed, although their duties are confined to the companies of their own state.

"The magnitude of the insurance business is most remarkable," said Mr. Pattison. "The amount of fire loss last year was $143,000,000—$31,000,000 more than ever before. The amount paid for life losses was nearly $70,000,000. The amount of assets of the life insurance companies in the United States is $550,000,000, over $100,000,000 more than the stock of all the national banks. The policy holders number over 6,000,000, and the amount insured covers nearly $5,000,000,000."

The weather in Washington is hot as a lime kiln, and has been so for several days. The sun shines furiously above, and the asphalt pavements are responsive with caline. Senators and representatives, with the dignity thawed out of them, sit in their places without vests on, and Wolcott, of Colorado, and Cameron, of Pennsylvania, occasionally make a sensation by appearing in striped shirts. Why doesn't congress hurry along with the little business it has to do and adjourn, thus releasing the members and those who are held there by them from their summer misery?

No Confirmation for Shiras.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The senate judiciary committee met for the first time since the anti option bill was disposed of by it, and took up the nomination of Mr. Shiras to be associate justice of the supreme court, but, after considering it for an hour, adjourned until Saturday. It was made evident at the session of the committee that the nomination is now to be confirmed without opposition.

Immense Fly Wheel Lets Go.

CINCINNATI, July 23.—The huge fly wheel at the Hunt and Broadway electric street railroad power-house flew into pieces early Saturday morning. Fragments weighing tons were tossed about like corks. Two missiles struck a boarding house near by wrecking the walls, but, miraculously, none of the slumberers were harmed. The engineer and some of his assistants were hurt, but not dangerously.
